

Dear Customer,

Since June 1st, 2007, new European Regulations have become applicable: REACH. It replaces and completes previous regulations and has the objective to list and evaluate most of the substances that are traded and used within the European Community.

As presented in the supply chain below our company is considered as a downstream user. So we do not need to register substances used in our preparations. This legal requirement applies to manufacturers and importers of such substances.

Our suppliers are all located in the EU and we only use their products within the conditions described in exposure scenarios communicated to us in a safety data sheet. However, our company ensures that its suppliers register substances used in their industrial activities following REACH's schedule.

To conclude, you can be sure the Group Edicolor is actively collaborating with several industrial associations, in order to create full REACH compliance and gives the highest consideration to the implementation of each required action.
